Nottingham is a major provincial city with substantial interests in retailing, manufacturing, education, call centre offices, warehousing and distribution.

Carlton Road forms part of the B686 trunk road and runs in a north-easterly direction from its junction with the A60 close to the City Centre and is one of the main routes east out of Nottingham City Centre, connecting eventually with Colwick Loop Road, forming part of the A612 trunk road.

This property is situated on the south-eastern side of Carlton Road, approximately two miles from the City Centre. The property has a direct frontage to Hooton Street and a return frontage to Carlton Road in accordance with the attached location plan. It should be noted that Hooton Street itself is a one-way thoroughfare.

The immediate surrounding area forms part of an industrial estate developed approximately 40 to maybe 50 years ago. Elsewhere there are substantial residential estates. Immediately to the north is Oxford Business College (Nottingham Campus).

This property occupies a prominent location on Carlton Road in a mixed residential and industrial area where there continues to be substantial demand for industrial premises. All the surrounding properties are currently let and occupied.
