Location

Roundhouse Birmingham occupies a prominent Canalside position on Sheepcote Street, just off Broad Street on the edge of Birmingham's core city centre. The Grade II listed former municipal depot and stables wraps around a cobbled central courtyard, overlooking the Worcester and Birmingham Canal and sitting between Brindleyplace, Arena Birmingham and the Mailbox, with the city's main office core a short walk away.

The location offers excellent connectivity. Five Ways and Birmingham New Street stations are both within walking distance, providing regular services across the Midlands and to London. Broad Street, St Vincent Street and the A456 give quick road access to the A38, Aston Expressway and wider motorway network.

Roundhouse is well served by local amenities, with an on site independent Italian restaurant, a wide choice of bars, cafes and retail at Brindleyplace and along Broad Street, and extensive leisure facilities at nearby Utilita Arena Birmingham and the ICC.

The Canalside setting provides attractive walking and cycling routes and an appealing working environment that combines historic character with immediate access to the heart of the city.
